Break All Records For Richmond Day

Attendance at the Virginia State Attendance at the Virginia State Pair yesterday broke all records, the number of people in the grounds lawing been larger by 10,000 than on any single day of any previous fair. The attendance was conserv-stively estimated at from 40,000 to stively estimated at from 40,000 to 65,000. The number of pausengers leaving the grounds by street car during the day comprised the largest number ever hauled from one point in a single day by the Virginia Railway and Power Company. There was remarkably little disorder, comparatively little congestion of traffic, few arrests, and no serious accidents.

biggest day of the fair, biggest in sacrons, biggest in exhibits, biggest in noise and color, yesterday struck a new gait in Virginia fair history by writing a total of 65,000 under the column of figures representing its attendance.

This is approximate. Two thousand people who stood in line with perfectly good money clamoring for grandstand tickets which could not be had because every seat in the stand was taken, swore by the beard of the phophet and all the socks guaranteed for six months, that not less than 100.

TAFT IGNORES POLITICS

Montpeller, Vt., October 2.—Presi-lent Taft attended the unveiling of memorial to Vermont's private sol-iters in the Civil War to-day, ad-reased the joint legislative assembly, and made several short talks to Mont-seller school children. The President urried away to St. Johnsbury and fretton Woods to spend the remainder f the day.

hurried away to St. Johnsbury and Bretton Woods to spend the remainder of the day.

The President's topic before the joint assembly was, "The Common Soldier of the Civil War." He adhered closely to the subject, and said not a word on politics.

The President's only digression was in relation to a larger reserve army. He declared that while the militia was efficient, it was not great enough in numbers to make an ample reserve. There will not be time in future wars, to prepare a great force of men in years of actual conflict. Modern wars, the President pointed out, would be decided in a gomparatively short period, and a trained reserve force was essential at the outset. The house chamber was packed with members of the Legislature and their friends.

The President's speech was applauded frequently and louding. he President's speech was applaud-frequently and loudly.
